

omne dominum amos... In nomine domini amen... Ego Indrius de lege... The main body of the manuscript contains a dense Latin text, likely a legal document or a historical record, written in a Gothic script. The text discusses various matters, including land ownership, inheritance, and administrative procedures, as indicated by the 'Ego Indrius de lege' section.

Ego Indrius de lege... In nomine domini amen... This section, written in a larger, more formal script, appears to be a signature or a formal declaration. It begins with 'Ego Indrius de lege' and continues with several lines of text, possibly a notarial formula or a public record.

1484. 20 febr. 15
Imperialia d'ima nobli' d'una
quidam d'artano a' d'una
d'artano a' d'una
d'artano a' d'una

Morbis 23' (73)

1484. 20 febr. 15
Imperialia d'ima nobli' d'una
quidam d'artano a' d'una
d'artano a' d'una

