

Handwritten text in a historical script, likely Latin or German, covering the majority of the page. The text is dense and appears to be a technical or scientific treatise, possibly related to geometry or mechanics, given the presence of the diagrams.

Handwritten text at the top of the diagram area, possibly a title or a specific instruction related to the diagrams.

Handwritten text at the bottom of the diagram area, possibly a conclusion or a reference to other parts of the work.

(44) F abstram

