

353

¶

This page contains dense handwritten text in two columns, written in a Gothic script on aged, yellowish paper. The text appears to be a historical document or a section of a larger work. There are several large, faint red ink marks scattered across the page, possibly from a previous owner or a library. The handwriting is somewhat faded and varies in size and style.

