CLXXVII

CLXXVIII

Inno domini Invenimus... [The main body of text is a dense Latin manuscript, likely a historical record or a list of events, written in a Gothic or similar medieval script. It contains numerous names and dates, though the handwriting is difficult to decipher. The text appears to be organized into several paragraphs or entries, possibly separated by initials or symbols. The ink is dark, and the parchment shows signs of age with some staining and irregular edges. The text is written in a single column across the page.

[A shorter line of text, possibly a separate entry or a note, located below the main block of text. It continues the Latin script and contains several lines of text.

[A longer block of text, continuing the Latin manuscript. It contains several lines of text and appears to be a continuation of the main record. The script is consistent with the rest of the document.
